

PREMIERING WEDNESDAY NOVEMBER 19TH AT 10 PM EASTERN/PACIFIC

BIGFOOT

The Final Story

In 1967, Morris Costumes made and sold a gorilla suit to Roger Patterson and his partner, Bob Gimlin, which they used to film the great "Big Foot" hoax, of a creature walking through the Bluff Creek National Park in northern California. Then in 2005, National Geographic contracted with us to not only make another costume for them, but also to act as a technical advisor for their "Is It Real" TV program on Bigfoot.

Now the TV-Land Network has just produced a new series called "TV's Myths and Legends". Included, is a one hour documentary that tells in detail, the complete story of how Patterson and Gimlin created the myth that became a legend, and fooled millions the world over.

Appearing on the program is Bob Heironimus, who wore the suit in the original Patterson film some 40 years ago. Bob not only tells about his experience, but takes a lie detector test on the air. He demonstrates that strange "Bigfoot" walk, and recounts how Patterson offered him $1,000.00 to wear the suit in the film, but never paid him. Author, Gregg Long's book, "The Making of Bigfoot" exposed the Patterson fraud to the world. Long is now recognized as the world's leading authority on the hoax. He spent over two years in research that involved interviewing everyone he could find that even remotely knew Patterson.

Be watching for the premiere showing on Wednesday, November 19th at 10:00PM Eastern and Pacific time. If you miss the program, don't worry, the show will repeat again that week and next year.
